Ex(Celle)nt specialities

Specialities are the culinary ambassadors of a region. The heathland sheep is the best example. Its tender, lean meat can be prepared in many ways. Restaurants which offer heathland sheep dishes can be recognized by the quality seal of the Association of Lüneburg Heathland Sheep Breeders. Celle, however, has more to offer.

Here are a few examples:

Buckwheat

Buckwheat belongs to the knotweed family. It grows on dry, sandy soil, is frugal, grows fast and does not like frost. It's at its best when served as a buckwheat pancake or a buckwheat cake.

Celler Gekochte

Boiled pork sausage. It is heated, cut in thick slices and often served with mashed potatoes and sauerkraut.

Celler Rohe Roulade

Very thinly cut beef, filled with mustard, bacon and onions, rolled to form a small beef olive and served with a pickled gurkin. Trying it out is a must!

Georg Wilhelm Likör

A mild sea-buckthorn liqueur which was very popular during the times of Celle's last duke George William.

Heath trout

Fresh trout filets from a smokery, served on a salad – one of the many ways of preparing Heath trout.

Heathland sheep

The grey horned heathland sheep is a mixed woollen country sheep. Its tender, lean and dark meat can be savoured as a roast or as a goulash and also as bacon, salami or cooked mettwurst sausage.

Heath honey

Aroma: rough to acidic. Colour: reddish-brown to yellow. Heath honey is best served on bread, in tea or as a Heath honey parfait.

Heidegeist

A mild, yellow-golden herb liqueur. Alcohol content: 52%

Heidesand

A typical butter shortbread from the region.

Huth's Kaffee

Celle's traditional coffee roaster. For more than 100 years the finest highland beans of different provenance have been roasted here daily. And what is special: The beans are gently roasted in small amounts at a maximum temperature of 200 degree Celsius so that the fine aromas can fully develop.

Cranberries

Cranberries are not only enjoyable in desserts such as the buckwheat pancake, but also as an accompaniment to savoury dishes such as game dishes. Cranberries also strengthen the immune system.

Asparagus

This noble vegetable can be served with Heath cottage ham, potatoes and runny butter as well as with a tender piece of meat or as a soup. Asparagus grows especially well on the loose sandy soil of the South Heath.

Ratzeputz

A sharp, dark-coloured herb liqueur. Alcohol content: 58%

Welfenspeise

White-yellow dessert made from boiled-down milk and zabaglione sauce. The colours are a reminder of the noble dynasty of the Guelphs.

Landhotel JANN HINSCH HOF

Hotel · Restaurant · Tagungen · Veranstaltungen · Sauna

Welcome to Winsen on the Aller!
Our country hotel lies in a popular holiday area on the edge of the Lüneburg Heath. The Jann Hinsch Hof offers 29 lovingly furnished rooms (including 2 disabled-friendly rooms, family rooms, 1 suite) as well as a wellness area with a sauna, massage and cosmetics section providing a wellness ambience.

Our restaurant also offers variety. Look forward to a light and creative cuisine with a Mediterranean touch. All dishes are prepared using fresh seasonal and regional produce. They can be accompanied by selected wines from all over the world, various tapped beer or our 'Jann Hinsch bio beer' from our own brewery.

We want you to feel at home with us. In the summer enjoy the view of the green countryside and in the winter the cosy warmth of the fireplace. You will discover: visiting our restaurant is worthwhile in any season.

Here you can also celebrate in style. We provide the suitable ambience for every occasion.
